A bit late, but we have included our draft in the documents section. We are now working on a improved version of the final document. We have included our presentation as well. Soon we will attach all the powerpoint presentation of WP3 session. We have protected the documents section with a password. If you are interested in havin access you can post a comment to that post or send an e-mail to the Katarsis Barcelona team. Anyway, we will send the password to the members' list of Katarsis.

After Lisbon meeting

March 26, 2008 · No Comments

After the lisbn meeting I wrote the following text (I don't know why it was not published, so I publish it now)

The Katarsis meeting in Lisbon is over. It has been a good opportunity to exchange opinions and comments about the whole Katarsis project as well as about the governance integration exercise. We have collected valuable information for the last part of our exercise. Finally, we have had also a good opportunity to see each other and to enjoy the wonderful weather and the city of Lisbon. We include some photos of the meeting. Enjoy them!

Construction of a Matrix of Governance dynamics

	Exclusion from	Exclusion through
EF1	Exclusion from labour markets to minorities and other groups and individuals. Post-industrialism	Impact of the work and working conditions on the other spheres of the personal and family life. -Impact of the position in the labour market on the social status of individuals. -Impact of autocratic decision-making structures in the workplace.
EF2	-Denying certain individuals or groups the access to education. Pre-schools, new immigrants. -Not preventing educational desertion -Exclusion from education leads to exclusion from labour market. -Existing hierarchies of gender, age, class and race. Cognitarianism	-Educational routes, educational selection and the principles of transfer between levels (Erikson and Johnson, 1997) -The earlier than the educational selection occurs, the more pronounced are the differences (Shavit, 1984) -Structures of “streaming” and “tracking” as exclusionary dynamics (Nicaise, 2000) -The type of preparation for future entrance on the labour market. -Competitive meritocracy vs. fair competition couched in the rhetoric of choice.
EF3	Situations where the individuals, household or social group lacks access to suitable housing. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ▪ Homelessness ▪ Sub-standard housing Lack of entitlement to housing	Housing neighbourhood as a casual factor in the generation of other forms of social exclusion, especially from the labour market and from civil society life. -Living in a particular neighbourhood may bring with it a range of disadvantages which may create or reinforce disadvantage at the individual or household level.
EF4	Because health services are largely supply driven, some urban areas can be excluded - Focus on health inequalities with targeted programmes for key groups like: pregnant women, pre-school children and disabled people can exclude other groups in need.	- Predominance of market based schemes far above users rights. - Deprived neighbourhoods suffering health and environmental problems - Deprived neighbourhoods perceived as a key indicator of health risks. -Issues of traffic and pollution as examples.
EF5	-Who has the right to vote? -Existing hierarchies of gender, age, class and race.	-‘Capitalist state creates social exclusion by structuring decision making in a “strategically selective” terrain.’ (Jessop, 2002 in Leubolt et al.,2007) -‘Market and public regulations are relatively univocal: In market regulations, prices based on market mechanisms dictate the governance

Theoretical framework

Governance questionnaire design

- Governance as a way to enhance socially creative strategies (scale)
- Governance as a transversal field (institutional context)
- Governance as democratic and participative innovation (actors)
- Governance as a process (time)

Problems for users to fill the questionnaire

- Too academically directioned
- Social actors do not answer it directly
- Redefinition into an interview on:
 - Modes of participation
 - Strategic context of financial activation and empowerment
 - Effectiveness and practices

Case studies. Comparative analysis I

	PARTICIPATION (initiative)	CONTEXT (constraints/oportunities)	TIMING (effectiveness)
ARSIS (Greece)	Established in 1992 and nowadays operating in Athens, Thessaloniki, Volos, Larisa, Karditsa, Polygyros and Tirana. Was founded by people usually involved as activists in the left parties more ideological, but when it became more organised participation has gotten wider. There are manly volunteers working in how the actions are. There are several modes of decision-making and in most of them there are volunteers. All the actions are organised by the base, with the coordination of professional workers in a counselling relationship.	There is no stable funding for the organisation, but they had build a trust relation with different levels. During the time the concrete budgets of their programs had been involving funding from some Ministries.	The first legal framework in which NGO were recognised by the Greek government was about 2003-04. Arsis has developed programs in prisons to teach Greek to immigrants who had become recognised by the government. Now there is an official language school for prisoners. ARSIS also has changed the municipal governance about roma minority seeking more inclusive policies, planning programs in order to know how to integrate.

Case studies. Comparative analysis II

	PARTICIPATION (initiative)	CONTEXT (constraints/oppor tunities)	TIMING (effectiveness)
Promo Cymru (Wales)	Is a Co-operative and Social Enterprise Agency to develop young people to their fullest by providing business support and advice whilst encouraging them to engage in social and cultural entrepreneurship.	Promo Cymru has specific project related funding help and as main own resource it works with a record company and a recording studio.	Promo-Cymru has also developed a reputation for the supply of media and cultural products to a wide range of clients to include the BBC, County Councils, private sector and National Assembly.

Case studies. Comparative analysis III

	PARTICIPATION (initiative)	CONTEXT (constraints/opportunities)	TIMING (effectiveness)
AFIP (Ile de France)	Non-profit organisation aiming to tackle racial discriminations by developing personal programs and services for ethnic-minority graduates, developing mentoring programs, settling a policy of equal opportunity involving companies and creating a link between organisations and young graduates	It works between the level of state and the market regional administration. Creating network between organisations, companies and individuals. Receives funding from the European union, from the region, and one program by one.	Local assessment to other non-profit organisations creating networks of attention. Creation of an accreditation for companies "Charte de la diversité", that promotes social marketing, and new program-project funding.
